

Redx Pharma named Bionow Company of the Year 2013

29 Nov 2013

Redx Pharma has won the award for Company of the Year at the prestigious annual Bionow Awards.

The Bionow Awards recognise and celebrate excellence within the biomedical and life science sectors across Northern England – showcasing the very best of this world-class sector.

The company enjoyed a double win on the night, with Dr Ralph Kirk from Redx taking the title of Promising Technologist of the Year.

The winners were announced at the prestigious Bionow Annual Awards Dinner on Thursday, November 28, which was attended by over 330 executives from across the biomedical industry.

Dr Neil Murray, Redx Pharma CEO, said: We're delighted to win this prestigious award which recognises business growth, competitiveness and innovation. Redx continues to focus on growth and excellence through innovation and we're grateful to the judges for recognising the achievements and hard work of our team in this very competitive category.

The fact that one of our talented young chemists, Ralph Kirk, was also recognised with a well-deserved award on the night makes victory even sweeter and we're very pleased for him.

The Awards Dinner was hosted by Dr John Stageman OBE, Chair of Bionow and Dr Geoff Davison, CEO of Bionow.

<http://www.bionow.co.uk/news/bionowannualawards2013...>

Neil Murray accepting the Company of the Year Award from Chris Doherty of AstraZeneca